Meet the neighbours.

This little fellow spent Thursday on our window pane. He wasn't worried about construction or traffic as he waited for nightfall – and waited for rain. He is assured of a healthy environment – he lives near our nursery. (We are growing native species in our garden to transplant onto our estate.) Avondale Creek has a supply of water that trickles down from the mountain behind us even through this dry spell. The creek will obviously play host to tadpoles when the time is right. So our native frog population will be assured.

Things are happening.

If you have managed to drive by our worksite lately, you'll have noticed an increase in activity on site. Civil works are under way, and we have a great crew working all week to get the infrastructure of your new estate established. They realise the urgency of working while conditions are right. While the frog population would welcome rain, we are pleased that the weather has been kind to our workers' schedule.

With equipment under close video surveillance, and regular security inspections through non-working hours, we are a secure and safe site.

Road Tek on the Move

You may have also noticed a big change in Kennedy Highway near Cumberland Avenue. The Road Tek buildings are missing! Their site has moved further along the roadway, and this allows us to start the intersection works which will eventually allow you easy access to the highway and the Smithfield. Having traffic lights at the intersection means safe access for estate residents who want to walk or bike across to their local shops.
